TIGER SNAKE
Notechis scutatus

Tiger snake venom contains a potent procoagulant toxin that causes venom-induced consumption coagulopathy in bite victims. This life-threatening pathology is the most common serious consequence of snakebite in Australia. Photo by Stephen Zozoya